EBP's are not simply characterized by known effectiveness; they are also well documented so that they are more easily disseminated.. The second criterion was evidence/science- based We live and work in an era of information overload and in an era where we experience increased pressure from federal, state, and local governments; funding entities; and land- grant university administrators for greater program effectiveness and accountability.

Three criteria were used to evaluate each curriculum, and each program's ratings are included in Table 1.. Evaluations were attempted, but the quality of studies made results difficult to interpret.. Major Parent Education Programs The parent education field utilizes a multitude of curricula, making it difficult for Extension professionals, Certified Family Life Educators (CFLE's), parent educators, and parents to choose a series of effective, research- based activities that will meet specific clientele needs for their parenting program.

Evidence- based programs (EBPs), according to Small, Cooney, and O'Connor (2 Are well- defined programs that have demonstrated their efficacy through rigorous, peer- reviewed evaluations and have been endorsed by government agencies and well- respected research organizations.. Ratings ranged from 0 (A parent educator would have to spend a great amount of time creating program materials prior to teaching the curriculum) to 5 (After studying and becoming familiar with the curriculum, an educator could teach the curriculum without having to prepare additional teaching materials).. How does a busy Extension professional decide which parenting program is best for his/her clientele who may include incarcerated parents, churches, military, kinship caregivers such as grandparents, mandated parent education for divorcing parents, children who end up in juvenile courts, etc.. Third was the quality of empirical studies on the program's effectiveness Ratings ranged from 0 to 5 and were adapted from Altman (1. Wch Ch350l Pci Parallel Card Driver

There is a niche for Extension faculty with the skills to glean from all the information those research- or evidence- based educational programs that are the most credible, trustworthy, and effective (Dunifon, Duttweiler, Pillemer, Tobias, & Trochim, 2.. They were evaluated in this article by the first author on the following three criteria: 1.. How ready to use are the program materials for Extension Agents and other parent educators?; 2.. Methodology We begin with Extension's mission—in this case to provide research- based information and empirically effective parenting education programs. Fire Tv Tool For Mac

Knowing how busy our Extension agents are and how pulled they are to address the spectrum of clientele needs, the first criterion was a very practical one—the readiness of the curriculum to be used in the field.. Mincemoyer et al , 2 Patterson, Miller, Carnes, & Wilson, 2 Science- based ratings in this article ranged from 0 (There was no clear evidence of research support in the curriculum) to 5 (A large number of references to research studies were included in the curriculum).. A review and critique of many of the major parenting curricula and available programs could potentially assist parents and professionals in implementing a program with confidence.. Sixteen major parent education programs were selected because they were of interest to Colorado State University Extension agents and state specialists.. var M =
